Eastern WA COVID-19 Testing for Farmworkers

The Washington State Department of Health is offering free COVID-19 testing for homebound farmworkers. There have been many COVID-19 cases in Eastern Washington. This test will give you an opportunity to ensure you do not have COVID-19 before you head home and keep you, your family, and community safe. All tests are voluntary.

First, we will give you an antigen test.

The provider will swab the inside of your nose or have you swab your own nose to collect a sample.

You will know your result before you leave the testing site.

An antigen test can quickly tell you if you have COVID-19. You will receive results in 15 minutes to one hour.

15 minutes   to   1 hour

If you test positive with the antigen test, we will give you a PCR test.

Like the antigen test, the provider will swab the inside of your nose to collect a sample.

PCR tests are more accurate than antigen tests, but they take longer to process. This test will help us confirm if you are truly positive for COVID-19.

You can expect to receive your results within three days.
